STREET CARS CAN'T EXTEND 5-CENT ZONE TO CONFORM TO CITY LINES

"The boundaries of the city of Los Angeles are not at all regular in shape, consequently a line in one direction might reach a considerable distance beyond the city limits and at the same time the terminus thereof be a shorter distance from the center of population in Los Angeles than would a line operating in the other direction wholly within the city. "Because the city annexes adjoining territory, making its boundary lines extremely irregular, it does not follow that a street railway system should be required to always extend its five-cent fare zone to conform to the new boundary lines."

—RAILROAD COMMISSIONER EDGERTON.

The Railroad Commission has dismissed the application of Palms, Richardson, Bairdstown, and certain sections of Hollywood to reduce Pacific Electric fares to a 5c basis, in a decision which for the first time makes public the state of Pacific Electric finances.

The Commission says that if the desired reduction were made, the Pacific Electric Railway Company would further lose $300,000 a year, and that such a condition would be created as to make operation of the road not now earning fixed charges, that much more burdensome.

The Southern Pacific Railroad owns all of the Pacific Electric stock and a great amount of its bonds. Only because of this ownership, says the commission, has the Pacific Electric been able to support the losses caused by jitney competition.

This amount, added to $821,734—the actual loss sustained in 1916—would create an annual deficit in excess of $1,000,000, it was decided.

The situation would have been worse, the commission believes, had not the freight earnings of the road increased $500,000 in 1916 over 1915. The commission found that the income of the Pacific Electric Railway Company has been decreased between $30,000 and $40,000 a month as a result of jitney competition.

"It must be obvious," said the opinion, "that the company can not, when showing such great deficits, be expected to give improvements in service which might otherwise be properly acquired or reduce fares still lower, thereby increasing its already severe losses. The evidence shows that the present fares do not give the Pacific Electric Railway Company sufficient revenue to meet its current expenses."

"The company reports an investment in Road and Equipment as of June 30, 1916, of $125,476,323.54; in this amount is included the Par value of Capital Stock outstanding—$74,000,000.00, all of which is owned by the Southern Pacific Company.

The Gross Income of the company for the past five years has averaged $2,577,225.56 per year. The interest on Funded Debt for the same period has averaged $2,550,586.61, leaving an average Net Income of $26,638.95, from which average income there should be deducted Rent for Leased Roads, Interest on Unfunded Debt, Amortization of Discount on Funded Debt, Reserves and Miscellaneous Adjustments averaging, for the five years under review, $525,164.05 per year, less $26,638.95, leaving a deficit in operation of an average of $498,527.10 per year.

In rendering its decision the Commission says in part: "The population of the city of Los Angeles for the year 1910, as indicated by complainant's Exhibit No. 17, was 319,198; in 1912, estimated on basis of registration, it was 461,558, and on the same basis for 1915 it was 558,011, but notwithstanding this great increase in population, defendant's passenger revenue shows practically no improvement, being $6,677,289.08 in 1912 as compared with $6,705,708.59 in 1916, a difference of but $28,419.51.

"For the transportation of milk the revenue in 1912 was $41,569.63, in 1916 it was $4,939.77, a net loss of $36,629.86. The total of all traffic handled by passenger trains in 1912 was $6,882,654.14 and in 1916 only $6,880,742.98, or a net reduction at the end of the five-year period of $191.16. The freight earnings, however, increased from $1,112,683.61 in 1912 to $1,656,067.71 in 1916, or $543,384.10. During the same period taxes increased from $320,698.65 in 1912 to $515,556.35 in 1916, an excess of $194,857.70.

AT STATE CAPITOL

AMENDMENTS OF INTEREST TO MOTORISTS TO COME BEFORE LEGISLATURE

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 31.—Several dozen amendments to the motor vehicle law are contained in the 2600 bills to come up for action in the legislature during March. Of these, it appears that the following have the best chance of being passed:

Furnishing the motor vehicle owner a certificate of registration containing a description of the vehicle to which it applies, to be carried in the driver's compartment. Upon sale of an auto, vendor and vendee must join in a notice of transfer on the back of the certificate to be returned to the motor vehicle department, so a new certificate can be issued.

Special provisions for registration of specially constructed or reconstructed cars, to check disguising and reconstructing stolen machines.

Authorizing employment of uniformed motor vehicle department inspectors to enforce the law.

Restriction of maximum weights for tractors and trucks over streets and highways.

Arranging all lights projected forward so no reflected light beam measured 75 feet ahead of the lamps shall rise to over 42 inches above the level of the roadway. Requiring trailers to have tail lights.

Abolishing the right of local authorities to give special permits for road racing or speed tests over the highways.

Making uniform rules for all cities and towns on the passing of street cars and stopping of automobiles within 15 feet of fire hydrants.

Prohibiting use of a motor vehicle without the owner's consent under any circumstances, and providing punishment. This is a crack at "joy riders."

Giving the state highway commission power to revoke or suspend an operator's and chauffeur's license after due hearing.

RECREATION CENTER LECTURE TO-MORROW NIGHT

Much enthusiasm is felt over the lecture to-morrow evening on Civic Recreation Centers, to be given in the High School auditorium by Mr. Wm. Raitt, Supt. of L. A. Playground Commission. This will be a free, stereopticon lecture and it is expected that the auditorium will be filled. Hundreds of plants will be given away on this occasion, a huge plant-grab having been arranged. Each person will be invited to put his hand into a barrel and grab. Rose trees, pansy plants, gladiolus bulbs and many other growing things will be given away free to all attending the lecture. This entertainment is under the auspices of the Glendale Garden Society, and forms part of its contribution towards the Civic Recreation Center Campaign.

QUESTION ON FLOOD BOND

Sycamore Canyon, Jan. 29, 1917. Editor Glendale Evening News:

I have been reading in the newspapers the many arguments set forth favoring and against the proposed bond of four and a half million dollars which we are asked to vote on the county on February 20.

Now, we voters desire a little concrete information on this matter. For instance, it is announced that $28,925 of the money will be used on the "Sycamore canyon, Glendale and Tropic work." This is too indefinite. Will you not have the friends of the move show us through your columns what this work will consist of? What will be actually done in Sycamore canyon? What, if anything, will be done in Scholl canyon? What will be the work in Tropic and in South Glendale? Collecting money for improvements where no benefits are received is a dangerous form of taxation. There are many rumors floating around about what work is to be done in Sycamore and Scholl canyons, and through Glendale and Tropic along the Sycamore canyon wash. Please let us have the facts about it.

Yours truly,
P. S. McNUTT.

Only the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties will witness the ceremony, which will be performed by Rev. J. H. Henry of Tropic.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

W. J. CLENDENIN ELECTED PRESIDENT—SECRETARY TO BE APPOINTED

The annual meeting of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce for the election of officers should have been held Friday evening, January 26, but as there was not a quorum present adjournment was made to Tuesday evening, January 30, at which time a quorum was present. J. W. Usilton, president of the chamber, presided and R. M. Jackson, secretary, served in his regular capacity. The following members were nominated as a Board of Directors: A. B. Heacock, G. B. Woodberry, J. C. Sherer, A. T. Cowan, H. P. Coker, M. B. Hartmann, H. A. Wilson, T. W. Watson, J. W. Usilton, R. M. Jackson, E. U. Emery, F. H. Vesper, Ed M. Lee, H. B. Lynch, F. L. Muhleman, W. E. Hewitt, W. E. Edmonds, G. H. Bentley, Charles L. Chandler, W. J. Clendenin. The Board of Directors having been chosen, they proceeded at once to nominate candidates to fill the various offices of the chamber for the ensuing year. The following were nominated and elected: W. J. Clendenin, President; A. T. Cowan, Vice-President; F. H. Vesper, Treasurer.

On motion it was decided to place the election of a secretary in the hands of the executive board which will be appointed at a meeting of the board of directors, Monday evening, February 5.

W. J. Clendenin, the newly elected president, upon taking the chair, addressed the members, stating that he is very much interested in doing all that will be for the benefit of Glendale and it is his desire to have the co-operation of every citizen of the community. He said he would preside at least three months and if at the expiration of that time he found that he was the man for the place he would be pleased to continue as president, but if he should at that time learn that he was not receiving the co-operation and assistance of the members that is necessary to accomplish the work that a Chamber of Commerce should accomplish, he would step down and let the work be taken up by others.

The chair appointed T. W. Watson and R. M. Jackson as a special committee to confer with the Pacific Electric company in regard to keeping the waiting room at the Glendale station open all day Sundays and holidays until such a time as the city is in a position to arrange for comfort stations in that section of Glendale.

Mrs. Nanno Woods, who was present, announced that a Civic Center meeting would be held in the High School auditorium Thursday evening of this week and invited all members of the Chamber of Commerce to be present and participate in this meeting. R. A. Petersen, R. M. McGee, Walter Le Noir Church and H. H. Faries spoke upon subjects pertaining to the needs of Glendale.

The question of taking up the extension of Brand boulevard by way of Ivanhoe was spoken of very encouragingly and the chairman assured the members that when the committees are appointed a special committee will be provided for the Brand boulevard extension.

It seemed to be the desire of the members and the visitors who were present to begin an active campaign for the building up of the Chamber of Commerce.

DEATH OF MRS. C. M. COWAN

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. M. Cowan, who formerly resided at the corner of Randolph and Campbell streets, Casa Verdugo, will be shocked and grieved to learn of her death at Thermal, Riverside county, early Tuesday morning. She had contracted la grippe, which turned into typhoid fever and her uncle, Dr. H. Gordon Bayliss of Los Angeles was sent for. She was delirious for two days and the doctor returned to Los Angeles to send down a trained nurse, but on arriving home received word that she had passed away. The remains will be brought to Los Angeles and services will be held at Rosedale cemetery Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Cowan came to Glendale from Knoxville, Tenn., about five years ago, and three or four years ago Mr. Cowan bought a ranch in the Coachella valley which he has been improving, and Mrs. Cowan has spent the last two winters at Thermal. She did not enjoy strong health, so lived a quiet life while in Glendale, but was generally esteemed by all with whom she came in contact for her sunny, sweet disposition and beautiful Christian character. She was a member of the Glendale Presbyterian church. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her husband, two sons, Charlie and Wallace, to whom the sympathy of the many friends and acquaintances of the family here is extended. All friends are invited to attend the last sad rites at Rosedale cemetery to-morrow morning.

It is expected that the International Council, of which it is a part, will hold its quinquennial convention in the United States. This action of the National W. C. T. U. makes all auxiliary unions a part of the great council.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

Since man began to write history, there is only one instance where civilization has persisted and prospered indefinitely in a country artificially watered. This is in the Nile delta.

And the one fundamental and profound reason for this is that the headwaters of the Nile river are so far in the impenetrable interior of the African wilderness that human beings have not been able to reach those headwaters and destroy the timber and the vegetation.

Palestine, a semi-tropic plain, with a watershed and a silt-made valley like ours of Los Angeles county, was in bible time, "a land flowing with milk and honey." Not only bible history, but profane history bears out this statement. It was a rich country of figs and dates and pomegranates and oranges. It is today a gullied, eroded desert over the greater portion of it, because the people made houses out of the trees of the mountain forests, and allowed forest fires to sweep off what they already had not destroyed. Palestine is only one instance. One of the principal reasons why what we call the early civilization was roaming and nomadic, was because the people destroyed the lands they occupied, and were forced on.

Southern California is a too beautiful and too rich and prosperous and pleasant a place to ruthlessly destroy. We can live here for the remainder of our lives, no doubt, and continue to make a living. But the heritage to our children will indeed be a doubtful gift if we do not control the flood waters of this coastal plain before the rivers and washes have made a network of striations, taking away the fertile lands forever, and depositing those lands in the harbors.

We must get up into our mountains and conserve our timber and our water. We must make a beginning along the lines of permanence of civilization. That's what this conservation program means that will be voted on in this county on Tuesday, February 20. You cannot vote against it if you believe in leaving some of this country for future generations.

WOMEN GO TO CHINA TO STIR UP TRADE FOR UNCLE SAM

Somewhere on the sea to-day between the United States and China are two American women, bound for the Orient to stir up trade in American made goods for their Uncle Sam.

These two women, who are fully accredited commissioners representing the United States government, are Mrs. Harriett M. Johnston and Mrs. L. W. Neely of Muncie, Indiana.

Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Neely are members of The American Commercial Commission, appointed to go to China and establish closer commercial relations between the two countries and to develop American sales agencies throughout the Orient.

They will assist the other members of the commission in establishing selling houses in Hankow, Canton, Peking and Shanghai and in selecting Chinese salesmen for American goods, as the Chinese do not like to buy direct from foreigners. Direct financial trade arrangements will be made.

The American commission is under the direction of Hon. David S. Rose, general counsel for the Chinese-American Products Exchange, and five times mayor of Milwaukee.

Members of the party are: Gen. Julian S. Carr, Durham, S. C., representing the Southern Commercial Congress; Fernando P. Neal, Kansas City; Julius C. Frank, Milwaukee; J. S. Lawson, Wisconsin, and Fred A. Landeck, Wisconsin.

MID-WEEK SERVICE SPECIAL PROGRAM

A large delegation from the First Methodist church attended the efficiency conference at the First Methodist church in Pasadena yesterday. The program for the day was under the direct leadership of Bishop Leonard. The speakers were a team of experts in the various branches of church activity.

These conferences are being held in the most central points of the northern and southern California conferences. Seldom is there such a program of vital things presented to the public.

This evening at the First Methodist church there will be "an echo meeting." Those who attended the conference will report on the various topics discussed. As the conference was of great interest and enthusiasm, the local meeting to-night is expected to prove of great interest.

GARDEN SOCIETY TO THE FORE

Certainly the Glendale Garden Society officials are forever planning new effects. A plant-grab is the latest idea. This will be carried out at the regular meeting to-morrow, Thursday, evening, at 8 o'clock in the High School auditorium, when a stereopticon lecture will be given to the public. In the hall will be installed two large barrels, both filled with plants and bulbs of various kinds, each one carefully wrapped up in paper. Everybody attending the meeting will be at liberty to grab for a plant. The lecture will be given by Wm. Raitt, Supt. of the L. A. Playground Commission; subject, Social Recreation Centers. Everybody in Glendale, come, meet Mr. Raitt, view beautiful pictures, and get a plant for nothing.

HORSESHOE CLUB ITEMS

Next Saturday, February 3d, Capt. Head and his team selected for the occasion will go to Pomona and play a contest of 50 games, 10 men to a side, with the Pomona Braves. Capt. Head being a modest man says, 30 out of the 50 games to their credit will be about the right figure.

Blatchley and Pettit claim the most successful pitch to secure a ringer is the Kelley slide. Head and Porter contend there is nothing to it. It's all in your eye. That the proper pitch is a high drop shoe so when you collar the peg, there you are (perhaps).

Wrightman says nix; put your left heel in a hole, stoop and use an up grade shoot. Stuart, Longshore, Croy and Denney say this fancy pitching is all bosh; the great secret of success is in just knowing how. Watch us and learn something about the game.

Wright says, stand straight, be dignified, keep your nerve, with eyes to the front, use a high pitch with a full shoulder movement. Weaver is the only man who can land a shoe two feet from the peg and still make a ringer. Says he has a patent on his system. If so, he had better show his credentials to McClellan, who is inclined to buck his system.

Yours for a
HORSESHOE CLUB FAN.

STUDIES IN PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

By Walt. Le Noir Church
STUDY XIII—ACTION

Efficient ACTION results from the proper co-operation of ability, reliability and endurance. It develops the personality, which makes for success, whether in a human or a civic corporation. Success always depends on our right relations with others. No person is entirely dependent. None entirely independent. But all persons are mutually interdependent. This is easier realizable by the people of one community; but it is true in the broader sense.

Therefore, the person who claims with Pharisaical complacency: "I owe no man anything but good will," "is a liar" (according to King Solomon), "and the truth is not in him." Of course, that is said "in a Pickwickian sense." Many really think it, honestly.

He owes humanity for his very life and continued well being; for the right and opportunity to earn a living and a fortune; for the protection and enjoyment of what he is privileged to earn; and for most everything that he is, has, and may become. Even the Creator works through the agency of our fellows to answer most of our prayers that should be answered at all. Probably it is well that many a time our most earnest "soul's sincere" desire, unuttered, or expressed, is not granted, as we find out later. Just think of how the wheels of progress, of our very existence, in fact, would be clogged in a ruin of systems, a wreck of worlds, if the conflicting petitions of ourselves and our fellows were all granted—or even if all our individual wishes should come true.

The moment we begin to realize, in a practical way, this mutual interdependence on one another, right then and there things begin to happen, which promise material betterment in the near future.

The great majority of Glendale's citizens missed a local demonstration of that simple fact in our civic family relationship, by not being present last evening, in City Hall, at the open annual meeting of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

Those who were present realized that a new nucleus had been formed there; a vigorous "Civic Center" for work and broader, deeper civic betterment, as well as the one for civic amusement and recreation advocated so ably by Mrs. Woods, who was invited to talk on that vital subject to the enthusiastic group of earnest citizens gathered with the wish and the intention to work for Glendale. One felt that none of the essentials of success was lacking. Ability, Reliability and Endurance were all in evidence; ready to express themselves as a unit in practical Action.

Whenever those four get together, good things will happen.

There was no sign of any "Glendale boom," which suggests a big noise, chiefly. But there were convincing evidences of practical work for the healthy growth and improvement of Glendale, which will surely show in future statistics of property valuations and census returns. (That means actual numerical figures, not mere figures of speech.)

Any thoughtful person will admit that Glendale's future depends to a very large degree on what is being developed in her public schools—particularly in Glendale High, one of the popular pets, of which Glendale is most proud, with most reason.

As these workers for public betterment will soon be busy in active affairs of practical business life, involving commercial and other financial interests in Glendale, why would it not be a good thing for them, as well as for the public at large, if there should be organized in the High School, the Glendale-High Chamber of Commerce, designed to supplement the city's Chamber of Commerce in its work for Glendale; and at the same time prepare themselves to step right into the larger work as soon as school days are over.

Perhaps the G. H. C. C. might practically demonstrate more than one interesting and valuable experiment not yet attempted by the older commercial body.

Why not? Our Glendale High contains "The White Hope" of Glendale in future contests of even much greater importance than athletics.

Right there is being developed, in a way that will count large, more ability, reliability, endurance and action, than in any other center of our civic endeavor.

It is the very heart of our present and the hope of our future. Having suggested generally what constitutes Personality, future studies in this series might be entitled, "How to Develop Personality."

LOWER FARE REFUSED

Interest on funded debt increased from $2,081,607.04 in 1912 to $2,334,107.62 in 1916. New bonds, amounting to $15,066,000.00, were issued in conformity with this Commission's Decisions Nos. 284, October 16, 1912, 559, April 8, 1913 and 1916, November 23, 1914, and included bonds for refunding, as well as for improvements, additions and betterments. It is also to be noted that the interest on unfunded debt increased from $114,337.28 in 1912 to $254,192.27 in 1916.

"The defendant has never paid a dividend and shows, as of June 30, 1916, a deficit of $4,432,855.99. In the year 1912 there was a net income profit of $496,216.30; in 1913, a profit of $199,871.33; in 1914, a loss of $467,229.38; in 1915, a loss of $683,521.23 and in 1916 a loss of $821,734.33.

"A witness for defendant testified to the effect that the jitney buses alone reduced gross income by from $30,000 to $40,000 per month. The estimate does not appear excessive in view of other evidence and no doubt would be greatly increased if the amounts lost to defendant by privately owned automobiles and motor buses were included.

"The reports rendered by ticket offices and the checkup of cars, for certain periods, combined with the cash register figures, however, demonstrate that the company's estimate of the losses to beach resorts on the Western Division is approximately correct and that the losses for the entire system would probably approach $300,000.00. This amount, added to the loss of $821,734.33 sustained in 1916, would create an annual deficit of over $1,000,000 unless the reductions in fares could be relied upon to increase the traffic and correspondingly increase earnings without materially augmenting expenses, a conclusion which is unwarranted by the evidence. The situation would be much worse had not the freight earnings increased $543,384.40 in 1916 over those earned in 1912.

"There is no testimony showing the number of jitneys in operation in the City of Los Angeles to the territory to which complainants seek reductions, but there is testimony that the jitney competition is very keen, and that private automobiles have also made great inroads on the earnings of the defendant. The decrease in earnings by reason of private automobiles was felt as early as 1913, and the competition of the auto bus lines and jitneys became very acute in the early part of 1915 and has since continued; to this character of competition is due, unquestionably, the severe losses of defendant.

"It must be obvious that this defendant can not, when showing such great deficits, be expected to give improvements in service which might otherwise be properly required, or to reduce fares still lower, thereby but increasing its already severe losses. The record contains testimony indicating that the present fares do not give defendant sufficient revenue to meet its current expenses.

"While it would, no doubt, be to the advantage of certain residents and property owners of the districts affected by these proceedings to secure reductions in the present fares, the public in general, as well as the carrier, have an interest in the margin of safety due to a public utility and, therefore, this Commission must and will take into consideration not only these complainants, but the rights of defendants and all other interests served by this defendant, whose legitimate investments should not be injured.

"The mere fact that territory is annexed to a city does not automatically operate to reduce existing fares which are higher than five cents to five cents if the higher fares are justifiable. This rule has been previously declared by this Commission in Froelich vs. Los Angeles Railway Corporation, Vol. 3, Opinions and Orders of the Railroad Commission of California, 30-31, wherein Commissioner Edgerton said:

"The boundaries of the city of Los Angeles are not at all regular in shape, consequently a line in one direction might reach a considerable distance beyond the city limits and at the same time the terminus thereof be a shorter distance from the center of population in Los Angeles than would a line operating in the other direction wholly within the city.

"Because a city annexes adjoining territory making its boundary lines extremely irregular it does not follow that a street railway system should be required to always extend its five-cent fare zone to conform to the new boundary lines."

"Complainants have not proven the rates to be discriminatory, neither has it been shown that the districts in question furnish a traffic of sufficient volume to justify a street car fare of five cents, and the Commission finds that the charges and fares to the points and places designated in the complaints herein, which were lawfully in effect November 3, 1914, are justified.

"This Commission can only prescribe just and reasonable rates and, after careful deliberation upon all the elements in these cases and the effect upon the revenue which would result from the reductions demanded by complainants, I am of the opinion that the facts do not sustain the complaints and recommend that the cases be dismissed."

FACT vs. FANCY

A good story is being told of a reply given by a student to a question set in an examination paper: "If twenty men reap a field in eight hours," ran the question, "how long will it take fifteen men to reap the same field?"

The student thought long and carefully before setting down his answer, and when he handed in his paper this is what the examiner read:

"The field having been already reaped by the twenty men, could not be reaped by the fifteen."—Tit-Bits.

GRAND OPENING THURSDAY EVENING

So generous has been the patronage extended Moore's Waffle and Chili lunch room on Brand Blvd. that more commodious quarters have been secured at the room located at 334 S. Brand Blvd., formerly occupied by the Clements Corset Shop. The interior of the new location has been redecorated and rearranged to make an ideal eating place. Special attention will be given to ladies' patronage and continuous service from 6 a. m. to 1 a. m. is given patrons.

On Thursday evening, the opening night, a special entertainment will be given from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m., to which the public is cordially invited.

The plantings of Oriental timber bamboo in northern Florida and Louisiana have grown to a height of 25 feet, and there is no longer any question about their producing in this country good canes comparable to those which they produce in China and Japan. A quick method of their propagation has been worked out so that it will be now possible to supply large enough quantities of the young plants to set out many small areas throughout the south, from the Carolinas to California wherever there is sufficient moisture and the land is not too high priced to admit of their cultivation.

TROPICO TRUSTEES

AN UNEVENTFUL MEETING ENLIVENED BY PALMER AVE. DISCUSSION

Tuesday evening the Trustees of Tropic met in regular session at the usual hour of 7:30, discussed several subjects, laid them over for future settlement, paid a few demands and adjourned.

Trustees Peters, Henry, Alspach, Seal and Vasselich, together with City Attorney Shaw, City Engineer Wattles and Health Officer Mabry were all present.

Minutes of the last meeting were read, approved and ordered filed.

As it was slated to have a motion passed changing the name of Palmer avenue, a goodly number of the residents of that thoroughfare were present and waxed eloquent on reasons for and against the changing of the name. As it was both proved the name should and should not be changed, the trustees decided that discretion was in better form than valor and laid the matter over for another couple of weeks.

The matter of compelling the Southern California Gas Company to serve patrons on Hill street was also resurrected. The gas company furnished testimony before the railway commissioner to the effect that in order to lay a gas main to connect Hill street it would be necessary to blast through 250 feet of solid rock. This testimony was refuted by Mr. Modgett, who claimed that the rock was in reality nothing but sandstone and gravel and could easily be removed with pick and shovel. In a communication from Mr. Protheroe, the gas company asked for more time to further investigate conditions, and the subject was tabled until a future meeting.

The subject of drainage from Acacia to La Brea court was brought before the board and referred to the city engineer.

Frank M. Motsch, proprietor of the Park Avenue Grocery, asked for a permit to sell milk. Permit was granted.

The following demands were allowed and ordered paid:

C. L. Jennings.....	$75.00

TURKISH BOOKSELLERS

A writer who spent most of his early life in Turkey observed that Turkish books and booksellers were among the curious features of the country. "The Turkish bookseller," he said, "has a soul above trade. He rarely attempts to sell his wares and treasures some of his more valuable books so greatly that he can hardly be induced to sell them, although they form part of his stock in trade. Many of the books displayed by the bookseller are in manuscript, which the old-fashioned Turks esteem more highly than print." The Koran he may not sell. He gives it away in return for a present of its value in money.—Exchange.

"Confidentially," said the undertaker's wife, "Mr. Smith hasn't paid the bill for his wife's funeral yet."

"Isn't that scandalous!" exclaimed Mrs. Gabbie. "I should think he'd be ashamed to let people see how little he thought of his wife."

"Yes, and his brother John, when his wife was buried, paid the very next day."

"Huh! Looked as if he was glad to get rid of her, didn't it?"

"Father," said Chester, "what is a diplomat?"

"A diplomat, my son," answered the father, "is the man who remembers a woman's birthday and forgets her age."

LUMBER INDUSTRY CONDITIONS REVEALED BY FOREST SERVICE

That unstable and partly speculative forest ownership in the west and south is the cause of frequent over-cutting of the market and waste of forest resources is announced by the forest service in a report just off the government press. Too large stocks of timber acquired from the public domain and too much timber speculation mixed with the manufacture of lumber, says the service, underlie the present instability of the industry.

All this, the service points out, concerns the lumber user. Many states are paying dearly for lumber because their own timber is largely used up and outside supplies can be obtained only at high costs of transportation. With little being done to grow new forests on cutover lands, a more widespread shortage of forest products is threatened in the future.

The forest service advocates various forms of open-price co-operation among lumber manufacturers to make the industry more efficient and check wasteful over-production. But it is strongly against changes in the present competitive character of the business through combinations to control output or regulate prices, even though advocated in the name of conservation.

The report contains the boiled-down conclusions of a study of timber ownership and the lumber business, undertaken by the forest service to find out how this business as conducted today affects forest conservation and the interests of the millions of users of wood in the United States, and to see whether the public policies for conserving the nation's forest wealth go far enough. It is also sought to help the industry solve the serious problems which confront it. Added weight is given to the report by the concurrence in its publication of the Federal Trade Commission, which co-operated with the forest service in the investigation. The commission, however, reserves its specific conclusions or remedies for a report of its own to be published later.

The forest service finds that the main problem of the lumber industry has grown out of the hundreds of billions of feet of timber acquired cheaply a few years ago from the public domain. Lumbermen in the west are carrying vast quantities of timberland beyond all possible needs of their present sawmills and logging camps. Widespread speculation during a few years of sudden development carried timber values very high, and many western stumpage holdings have been over-capitalized.

The business of making lumber, says the report, has thus been loaded down with investments in timberland. The productive branch of the industry has been interlocked too largely with speculations in its raw material; and instead of standing on its own feet as a manufacturing business, has tended to be the tail of the dog, made frequently to serve the exigencies of timber speculation. According to the report, pressure from an overload of timber is the first cause of the general instability of the industry. For one thing, it has led to building mills beyond the demand for their products. At least a third of the saws are now idle.

On the other hand, the forest service reports that social and economic changes in the United States are reducing its proportionate use of lumber. Uses taken over by other structural materials within the last ten years are estimated at one-fifth of the present yearly cut of lumber; and in the same period the per capita consumption of lumber seems to have passed its peak and dropped nearly one-fourth.

Caught with its burden of timberland on the one hand and these changes in the country's use of wood on the other, the lumber industry, the report points out, has been between an upper and nether millstone. The combined result is an ill-adjustment of lumber production to market requirements, with frequent, almost chronic overproduction. Ups and downs have been the rule with most manufacturers in the west and south. Occasional years of high earnings have been followed by usually longer periods of small profits or loss. The latter reached their climax in 1914 and 1915, although 1916 brought somewhat better conditions.

In the regions studied by the forest service, it found that lumber production, with local exceptions, is competitive, as a rule keenly so. Competition becomes still more vigorous in its struggle between different regions in selling lumber in the main consuming markets of the country.

Lumber retailing was studied in all of the middle western states only. In that region the service found it to be competitive for the most part, although its competition is less rigorous than in the case of lumber manufacturers. The restraints upon trade in lumber distribution, however, in the Central states studied, are judged to be local rather than general; and developments in recent years have tended to increase competition.

The rising cost of lumber to consumers, which held generally up to 1907, is attributed by the forest service primarily to the exhaustion of the supplies of timber nearest to the bulk of eastern consumers, and the necessity of transporting lumber from greater and greater distances. Railroad freights now take a fifth or more of the consumers' price, retailers about the same amount, and manufacturers, on the average, little more than one-half. The high cost of lumber is thus due in large part to local timber shortage, resulting from the rapid using up of forests without provision for their renewal. Other causes, according to the service, lie in the greater demands for specialized service made upon the retailer by the purchasing public, in higher labor costs and in the decreasing purchasing power of money. Since 1907, however, the effects of over-production have been felt, and the prices of common structural woods have made no substantial increase.

The American public, the forest service points out, has no responsibility to protect the security of timber investments or the outcome of speculative ventures. The welfare of many sections, however, depends in no small degree upon lumbering as a large tax payer, a gigantic employer of labor and capital, and the chief consumer of agriculture and other industries. The people of the whole country, furthermore, have a live interest in the economical use of present timber supplies and in continued forest production after logging.

The report lays special emphasis upon the fact that such waste in the use of our national forest wealth as is now taking place will tell inevitably in the future cost of lumber, paper, and other products manufactured from timber, as it has told already in many "cut out" states. Furthermore, under present conditions, little is being done to restock the forest lands logged for their virgin timber. The total use of wood in the United States exceeds by a good deal the aggregate growth of its forests, and unless the enormous areas of cutover land, to which millions of acres are added every year, are put to growing new forests, the forest service thinks that the danger of a nation-wide shortage of timber and high prices for all wood products will become acute. The unstable condition of the lumber industry, the report says, makes it unable to do much toward renewal of the forests which it has destroyed.

The experts in the forest service believe that a more stable kind of forest ownership, divorced from manufacture to a larger degree than now, must come about before the ills of the lumber business can be cured permanently. This kind of ownership must not only carry the present stocks of merchantable timber until the productive industry needs them, but also provide for regrowth on cutover lands. The extension of public forest ownership, both state and national, should, in the judgment of the service, have a large part in this accomplishment.

According to the service experts, there is no surplus of forest resources above the country's needs. There is rather a lack of forests, particularly of growing forests, to take the place of the reservoirs of virgin timber now being drained. The difficulty lies, says the service, in the wrong kind of forest ownership.

A national mistake, the report goes on to say, was made in such rapid and wholesale passing of title to timberlands in the public domain, beyond all immediate needs for local or industrial development. Private ownership, hard pressed to carry these staggering quantities of timber during the long periods which must necessarily elapse before they can be converted into lumber, is now sacrificing them in part by wasteful use because of its own financial exigencies. The carrying of this future resource, the forest service declares, should have been a public rather than a private function. The report urges that this situation be faced frankly and the obvious remedy applied, that of taking part of the western timberland back.

Much can be accomplished also, the report says, by public and private co-operation in fire protection and in securing methods of taxation better adapted to timberlands, and, to insure the regrowth of logged-off forests, reasonable public regulation of the handling of private lands will unquestionably find a place in working out the problem.

Finally, the forest service disavows radically with the idea now rooted in many quarters that forest conservation should be sought through permitting industrial combinations for the regulation of lumber production or control of lumber prices. It regards such developments as involving dangers to the public interests through restraint of trade so serious as to offset any possible advantages to the public from such forms of conservation as they might foster. The service believes, in fact, that such measures as joint control of lumber output by agreement would be ineffective in holding back the pressure to cut timber and in overcoming the other weaknesses which cause overproduction. Betterment in the industry, the service holds, must come largely through strengthening individual operators or owners, and particularly through a more stable ownership of forest lands, in which the public participates to a much larger extent than now.

The forest service advocates such forms of co-operation as trade asso-

BABIES COST MORE IN ENGLAND NOWADAYS

(By United Press.)

LONDON, Jan. 31.—(By Mail).—Babies are between $150 and $200 costlier in England today than they were before the war.

An expert has just figured out what it means for British fathers and mothers to have babies in war time.

On the annual basis it costs about $10 more for an infant's milk than two years ago. Baby food costs two cents more a feed and even bottles are up a third. Methylated spirit to heat the infant's night food is now more than double the normal price.

Infantile garments cost 33 1-3 per cent more just now if they are made of wool; if cotton or woolen mixture its an additional 25 per cent and 15 per cent if merely cotton. The expert suggests that the high price of infant's long frocks, flannels, cot blankets, woolly shawls, vests, shoes, the nurses' baby bath paraphernalia is enough to make ordinary parents gasp. Even the bath costs a third more, the bath thermometer is up 25 per cent and toilet powder has skyrocketed 100 per cent.

If the baby is ill, medicines, beginning with good old castor oil, are doubled in price. Olive oil is up fifty per cent, glycerine 15, lanoline 300 and even the price of dill water is not what it used to be.

Perambulators that sold for $40 at the beginning of the war, now cost the enduring parent about $55. A cot he might have bought for $5 two years ago now takes about $8 of his bankroll. When he has provided the cot he can buy the mattress at one and one fourth the original cost. High chairs cost $5 now. They used to cost $4.

Nurses in England now do their work for $50 additional to the usual wage. The nurses' food costs an additional 33 1-3 per cent.

Thus the Rooseveltian theory isn't encouraged, the infant expert observes.

TO MAKE ARMY PAY FOR ITS KEEP

By Charles P. Stewart, United Press Correspondent.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 31.—(By Mail).—One of the most revolutionary plans the new Irigoyen administration in Argentina is fostering today is a scheme which might or might not appeal to Uncle Sam to make the national army pay for its keep.

The proposition is to use the troops as a sort of gendarmerie, especially with a view to guarding the frontiers against "contrabandistas" and to the collection of government revenues, which will not only give a better service than the country has had before, but will save the salaries of the officials who have been doing such work in the past.

A bill authorizing the assignment of the military forces to this class of duties was introduced in congress before the end of the de la Plaza administration, but nobody took much interest in it and it seemed likely to die in committee. Irigoyen's officialdom pounced on it immediately, however, and will urge its prompt passage.

The idea is not popular with the army or with the functionaries who are threatened with loss of their positions, but the Irigoyen economy regime has had an enthusiastic reception by the masses of taxpayers.

Incidentally, it is understood to be the government's intention, as an economy measure, to make a drastic reduction in the number of conscripts called to the colors annually for military training. There is even some talk of abolishing conscription entirely. Nobody knows just how strong the movement is yet and it is sure to be desperately fought by the element which wants a great deal more military preparation instead of less of it.

THE REAL THING

"You don't know what torture is," said Jones to Smith. "What is it, then?" asked Smith. "I suffered it yesterday," answered Jones, "when the barber had my mouth full of lather and I sat there watching the shop boy giving my Panama hat to another customer."

WHERE ARE THE DEAD?

Recently a Los Angeles clergyman gave out the question for his congregation to answer: Where are the dead? The only person who could answer the question satisfactorily was a newspaper man, who said the dead are in the stores that do not advertise.

clations and selling agencies, safeguarded by public supervision and regulation. But changes in the competitive status of the industry, like joint control of production or price, can, in the view of the service, come about only with an entirely different national conception of the country's basic resources. The adjustment of public and private interests in a national policy which seeks the widest use of forest resources and controls the industries which exploit them may then become possible, including the principle of regulating output. But in any developments of this nature, the public should have a direct and a ruling voice.

Facts and Comment

The women's clubs have joined forces with the chamber of commerce in Ontario in an attempt to block the movement to destroy the pepper trees along the double driveway of Euclid avenue in that city.

A campaign will be launched by the officers of the Orange County Fruit Exchange for the organization of a growers' co-operative fumigating company. The object is to centralize the citrus fumigating business and to have the work in charge of a man who can give his whole time to it.

The great activity in real estate around Van Nuys at the present time, the number of new buildings under erection and the many buildings to be started soon are convincing evidence that the great wave of prosperity has reached the community, says the Van Nuys News, and the general impression is that Van Nuys will have a phenomenal growth this year.

Forty-seven Spencer, Iowa, people who are now making Whittier their home met in Central Park in that city Saturday and after a picnic dinner organized the Spencer-Whittier association and elected officers. The members plan to have a gathering at least every three months, and will probably attend the Iowa picnic to be held in Eastlake park, Los Angeles, on February 22, in a body.

The Automobile club of Southern California now has established thirty touring information bureaus and branch offices throughout the southern part of the state, with five more contemplated in the near future. Motorists from the East visiting Southern California will practically never be more than thirty miles from a club touring bureau in the most heavily traveled regions. The system will be so arranged that all road information emanating from Los Angeles can immediately be in the hands of the representatives throughout this territory, if the call is urgent, as in the case of storms.

Dr. R. L. Greer of the federal bureau is making a thorough investigation of Long Beach, San Pedro and San Diego fish-packing operations, which he will report to Dr. H. M. Smith, head of the Federal Bureau of Fisheries at Washington, on the latter's arrival in Long Beach to hold a conference with fish packers and members of several scientific and research societies, with a view of developing the industry. One of the measures to be discussed will be the appropriation of a larger sum by Congress to investigate the "albacore schools and institute measures for the conservation of the fish supply. The albacore, it is pointed out, is at present being caught in larger numbers than is salmon in United States waters. For the conservation of the salmon schools, it is argued by the tuna packing interests, the government is expending fully ten times the amount being appropriated for the investigation of the entire tuna packing industry.

The "Sterling," sixty-five foot launch and third mystery ship which has equipped itself in the Long Beach harbor for a coastwise cruise of several thousand miles, slipped out of that port Saturday evening under cover of darkness. On board was a crew of 16 men, mostly foreigners, and a cargo which had been loaded on the craft during the week. It is surmised that somewhere well below San Diego the ninety-foot auxiliary schooner "White Star" and the eighty-foot power launch "Robert Steele" are awaiting the arrival of this third craft. From some quarters the theory has been advanced that the craft had been chartered to carry a cargo of munitions down to Mexico. In other circles it is rumored that they are off on a salvage and pearl diving expedition. The Long Beach Telegram said the Mexican theory gained credence when it became known from reliable sources that during the week several fishermen had been approached by Mexican agents to ship a cargo of arms to supply a new revolutionary party.

THE SPEAR IN THE TUSK

It seems unbelievable that a savage's iron spear point seven and a half inches long by one and a half inches wide has been found all grown over and perfectly hidden in a big elephant's tusk. The savage had roosted up in a big tree over a spring where the elephant came for water. Then he dropped this spear, weighted to fifty pounds, so as to strike the nape of the neck and pierce the brain. Here the spear went a little to one side of the brain and into the big open funnel end of the root of the tusk, broke off and then "grewed" up in the ivory like a nail in a tree. The spear was found when the tusk was carved.—Exchange.

GOT THE WRONG PERSON

In no other household except that of a doctor could this mistake, reported by the Louisville Courier-Journal, so plausibly have occurred. "Get my bag for me at once!" boomed the doctor. "Some fellow telephones in a dying voice that he can't live without me!" "Just a moment!" interposed his wife. "I think that call is for daughter, dear."

MACARONI

Macaroni is a thing we have always wondered about.

We know, in a general way, that it is sent out from factories in boxes looking very naked and white, and that it comes to the table wearing cheese.

Aside from that macaroni is as much of a mystery to us as what the man says who goes past the house yelling for old clothes.

We have always wondered about the holes in macaroni. Are they set up in rows and the macaroni wrapped about them? Or are they bored while the young macaroni is still unable to defend itself?

Also, what is macaroni made of? There's rubber, of course. We know that. But what else? We have been letting macaroni slither down our throats off and on for twenty-seven years, and yet if some stern-faced scientist should suddenly stop us in the middle of a four-inch piece and ask us if we knew what we were swallowing we could only answer "macaroni."

This is wrong. How long must the world go on without knowing more about its macaroni?

NO TELLING

A rather patronizing individual from town was observing with considerable interest the operations of a farmer with whom he had put up for a while.

As he watched the old man sow the seed in his field the man from the city called out facetiously:

"Well done, old chap. You sow; I reap the fruits."

Whereupon the farmer grinned and replied:

"Maybe you will. I am sowing hemp."

The late bishop of London was once ordered by his physician to spend the winter in Algiers. The bishop said it was impossible, he had so many engagements. "Well, my lord bishop," said the specialist, "it either means Algiers or heaven." "In that case," said the bishop, "I'll go to Algiers."

An Irishman in a town in the South was careless enough to let his priest catch him emerging from a saloon with a demijohn under his arm. The priest waited for him to come by and said:

"Mike, what is it you have in that demijohn?"

"Whiskey, sir."

"To whom does it belong?"

"To me and me brother Pat, sir."

"Well, Mike, pour yours out, and be a good man."

"I can't, Father," said Mike, "mine's in the bottom."
